McCarthy Aide Admits Delivery Of Photograph

Says Two Sets Made from Print Supplied by Schine

WASHINGTON (AP)—A member of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy's staff took responsibility today for delivering a "doctored" photograph of Pvt. G. David Schine and Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens to Senate investigators.

The witness was James N. Juliana, who was put under questioning at the Army-McCarthy hearings after the Wisconsin senator announced he was the one person who could best tell the story of what happened to the famous photograph.

Juliana said two sets of photostats were made from a print supplied by Schine. One showed Schine, Stevens, and Col. Jack T. Bradley, commandant of McGuire Air Force Base near Ft. Dix, N. J.

The other showed only Schine and Stevens. Juliana said he delivered that version to hearing counsel Ray H. Jenkins "because I thought that was the one you wanted."

No Knowledge By Jenkins
Juliana testified that after Schine delivered the original picture, he asked Don Surine, assistant committee counsel, to have photostats made of the three persons and also showing only Stevens and Schine.

Juliana testified that when the photostats were delivered, he had mounted on hard white paper the enlarged photostat of just Stevens and Schine. He placed the others in a filing cabinet in the office of staff director Francis P. Carr.

He said he then furnished just the mounted photostat of Stevens and Schine to Jenkins.

Jenkins brought out that he had no knowledge that the disputed photograph was a "cropped" or "doctored" photograph.

"Did I say to cut anyone out?" Jenkins asked.

"No, sir," Juliana replied.

Jenkins brought out that he had been advised earlier that a photograph of Stevens and Schine was in existence. He wasn't told the original picture showed a third person.

McCarthy May Testify
Juliana's testimony highlighted a session during which special Army counsel Joseph N. Welch suggested McCarthy himself be called to testify out of turn in order to speed up the dragging investigation.

Welch said he would ask that McCarthy be sworn as a witness as soon as Stevens completes his testimony. Stevens was excused from the stand Thursday while the subcommittee pursued efforts to find out who "doctored" the photo. Stevens will return when the picture episode is finished.

Welch said his idea was to expedite proceedings by hearing the two chief principals as soon as possible.

Hearing Chairman Karl E. Mundt (R-S.D.) said Welch the subcommittee would determine the order of witnesses.

The picture incident became a major issue because Secretary Stevens testified he never was photographed alone with Private Schine, former McCarthy aide for whom McCarthy and his aides allegedly sought favored treatment.

Schine, himself, had testified Thursday he did not know who did the "doctoring."

U. S. Business Leaders See Upturn by Fall

WASHINGTON (AP)—U. S. Chamber of Commerce leaders believe 1954 will be a good business year, possibly the second or third best in the nation's history.

This was the general opinion expressed by 30 top officers and directors in United Press interviews during the chamber's just concluded annual meeting here.

A representative group of businessmen from throughout the country, the 30 included bankers, farmers, merchants, top executives of life insurance, large diversified manufacturing and other companies. A majority are connected with moderate-sized or large businesses.

They expected a general upturn in business by next fall or sooner. Some believe the upswing already has started.

Sales Climb
A Commerce Department report lent support to this view today. It said manufacturing activity picked up substantially in March with sales climbing by more than four billion dollars compared to February and inventories dropping more than one billion dollars.

New orders rose nearly five billion dollars compared to February and unfilled orders increased sharply. Even so, the overall business of manufacturers was still below a year ago.

Among the chamber executives, the best business outlook was reported for the southeastern states. The least favorable prospects were foreseen for drought-stricken farm areas. And in many of them, things have been looking up since recent rains.

However, the national farm income was expected to be down, regardless.

Eldorado Students Compete in State High School Music Contest

Thirteen Eldorado Township High school students are competing in the state high school music contest being held today and Saturday at Illinois State Normal university, Normal.

The contestants are Frankie Davis, Nettie Ann Gholson, Ann Culbertson, Bill Coker, Beth Miner, Mary Ann Read, Lindra Sontra, Darla Mills, Janice Wason, Carol Muckley, Betty Renshaw, Sandra Thomas and Joanne Hopkins.

Big Three, Reds Agree to Talks on Indochina Peace

Russia Drops Demands to Include India

GENEVA (AP)—The Western Big Three and the Soviet bloc agreed in principle today on a nine member Indochina peace conference.

Informed Western sources said Russia apparently dropped an earlier demand that India be included.

Principals in the conference would be the United States, Britain, France, the Soviet Union, Red China, the three associated states of Indochina and representatives of the Indochinese Communist rebels.

The agreement was reached at a lunch table conference between Britain's Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and Red China's premier and foreign minister, Chou En-Lai.

It was subject to final approval by the other participants. Dulles, Molotov to confer.

The conference to end the shooting war in Indochina, these sources said, very likely will begin next week.

A U. S. spokesman said U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, who will leave the conference and return to Washington Monday, will confer with Molotov Saturday. Arrangements for the Indochina conference presumably will be discussed.

Dulles will be replaced by Undersecretary Walter Bedell Smith. Eden presented a joint appeal for the West at today's meeting with the Russian and Chinese foreign ministers to get the Indochinese talks started at once.

West is Divided
But the Western Big Three found themselves divided on many other issues.

Authoritative American sources listed these differences separating the Western Big Three:

1. Britain and France so far have failed to support Dulles' strong stand for unification of Korea.

2. The United States wished to negotiate from strength on the question of Indochina but Britain turned down a U. S. request that she consider joint air and naval intervention in the Indochina war.

3. The United States still, as of today, was in the dark as to just what Britain is trying to arrange with India, Ceylon and Pakistan as regards Indochina.

Adding to United States irritation is the fact France is holding up the dispatch of the blunt Big Three rejection of the Soviet bid for entry into the North Atlantic alliance.

The Philippines, Thailand and Turkey were the scheduled speakers at today's 19-nation conference. No session was scheduled for Saturday. Instead the delegates will observe May Day.

Eden to Meet Red Minister
Meanwhile, Russia made the first move to thaw out the deep freeze treatment given by the West to Red China. Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov invited British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden to meet Red China's Foreign Minister Chou En-Lai at lunch at Molotov's borrowed villa.

Molotov wanted Eden to act as mediator between the Chinese Reds and the Western bloc.

Afterward, a British spokesman said the three "discussed topics

Morganfield Man Seriously Hurt in Crash on Rt. 34

Floyd Sinsabaugh, 28, of Morganfield, Ky., Route 2, was rushed by ambulance shortly after noon today to the Lightner hospital suffering crash injuries that were believed critical.

Sinsabaugh's auto and one driven by W. H. "Pat" Malone, well-known insurance adjuster from Carbondale, crashed on Route 34 between Mitchellville and Rudeville.

Malone told officers that when he topped a hill that Sinsabaugh came entirely over into his lane of traffic and that a head-on crash resulted.

Malone and his passenger, Clay Wilson of Tulsa, Okla., suffered minor injuries. Both vehicles sustained extensive front-end damage.

Reports were that Sinsabaugh, son of Ernest Sinsabaugh of near Derby, was thrown from the car to the pavement.

Preliminary Work On Wabash Bridge Is Authorized

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—Preliminary construction work has been authorized on a toll bridge across the Wabash river near Mt. Vernon, Ind.

Indiana Toll Bridge Commission chairman, Otto Frenzel, says an Evansville firm holding the construction contract has been given a limited "proceed to work order."

The order was based on expectation the commission will sell about $2,600,000 worth of bonds next month to finance the project.

Construction contract was awarded about two years ago to Traylor Bros., Evansville.

House Defeats Proposal to Limit Troops

Ban on American Forces Abroad Loses by 214-37 Vote

WASHINGTON (AP)—The administration claimed a victory today with the defeat of a proposal that would have put limits on the President's power to send troops into embattled Southeast Asia.

Speaker Joseph W. Martin Jr. declared "It was a vote of confidence on the part of the House that President Eisenhower will come to Congress before any decisive action is taken to send forces to Indochina."

The proposal, to bar the dispatch of troops abroad without congressional approval, was beaten 214-37 late Thursday only a few hours after Mr. Eisenhower condemned it as a move that would hamper his power to act swiftly in uncertain and fluid situations.

The House afterward went on to pass, 377-0, the $26,684,250,486 defense appropriations bill to which the troop ban would have been an amendment. It now goes to the Senate.

Democrats attacked the big money bill as cut dangerously thin, particularly in view of the grave situation in Indochina. But they offered no amendments to fatten it up and voted for it on final passage.

Actually, the measure was cut $1,202,804,514 below what the President requested and totaled $5,629,070,514 less than the services got for the current year.

Rep. Frederic Coudert (R-N.Y.) pleaded for adoption of his troop ban to reassert the authority of Congress to declare war. But administration forces denounced the proposal as dangerous and he was able to muster only a handful of votes.

Entertaining Program at Dinner Club Meeting

George Bailey, an entertainer from Pennsylvania, presented a highly humorous variety program to members of the Southern Illinois Dinner club last night at the Kurto country club.

Bailey, during his program, showed a remarkable memory for names, used various members of the audience as "stoges" for his magic tricks, and played several beautiful selections on his musical glasses.

In his memory of names, Mr. Bailey, preceding the dinner, memorized the names of 104 of the members present and after the dinner he called them each by name with only one mistake—and that in only one letter of the name.

He offers $5 for each mistake and his mistake last night cost him the $5.

His formula for memorizing any thing is repetition. He says he repeats the names to himself until he has them perfectly in his mind.

Mr. Bailey played the following songs with his hands on the musical glasses: Bells of St. Mary's, Danny Boy, Mocking Bird Hill, Tennessee Waltz, Blest Be the Tie That Binds and Silent Night.

Bruce Burnett, president of the Dinner club, announced the next meeting will be held May 20 with Curt Singer to be the guest speaker on the subject, "Traitors and Spies."

He also announced a new plan for reservations which must be made before each meeting. The final time for reservations will be by noon of the day of the meeting but earlier reservations are being urged.

The invocation was given by Father W. E. Hanagan of Eldorado and the speaker was introduced by T. Leo Dodd.

Fred H. Wasson One of 8 Baptist Laymen to Tour South America

Fred H. Wasson, Carrier Mills merchant, will be one of eight Southern Baptist laymen entering South America in September on a tour of mission fields under sponsorship of the Brotherhood Commission of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Dr. George W. Schroeder, Executive Secretary of the commission, whose headquarters are in Memphis, announced today that the men would leave Miami on Sept. 5 and would travel in eight countries — Venezuela, Argentina, Chile, Peru, Ecuador, Paraguay, Uruguay and Brazil.

The party, in addition to Wasson, is made up of an insurance man from Texas, a physician from Missouri, a retired cattleman from Arizona, a businessman from Memphis, a veterinarian from Alabama, and an automobile dealer from Illinois. James M. Sapp, associate secretary of the Brotherhood Commission office, will lead the group.

Separate Itineraries
The eight men will travel in teams of two on separate itineraries. They will observe the work being done, visit as many mission outposts as possible and spend several days at key stations speaking and conferring with the people. The tour has been arranged in cooperation with Southern Baptist's Foreign Mission board in Richmond, Virginia.

"This is the first trip by laymen to mission fields to be sponsored by any agency of our denomination," Schroeder stated. "This party will go at their own expense as representatives of the quarter-million men affiliated with the Brotherhood organizations in 8,000 churches in 22 states. We believe many benefits will be derived for those involved and for men who will learn these men when they return," he added.

"Fred Wasson is the kind of layman every pastor wants in his church," so states Rev. Earnest Ammon, pastor of the Carrier Mills Baptist church.

For thirty-four years he has served as a Sunday school superintendent or teacher. He is recognized as a top flight Brotherhood leader throughout the state. He is an able temperance leader and soul-winner.

For many years he has served on the executive board and as Moderator of Saline association and is now president of the Association of the Brotherhood.

He is the Illinois member of the Southern Baptist Brotherhood commission.

His civic leadership is vested in Gideons, Red Cross, Boy Scouts, and Lions.

State Inspectors Report on HTHS Conditions

Harrisburg Township high school is operating well but there are some faults that can be corrected in its physical plant, a report of three inspectors from the state who visited the school last month revealed today.

The report says the school is well organized and operating smoothly and the effort to give leadership to the staff seems evident, and the program of studies provides wide learning opportunities in almost every area.

However, it says, an effort could be made to secure a broader cooperation between teachers in the various departments with the object of eliminating duplications, the school needs redecorating, the lighting facilities are inadequate and the library is too small for a school of Harrisburg's size.

Girl Scout Tag Day Tomorrow

It's Girl Scout Tag Day in Saline county tomorrow.

Scout leaders today pointed out that all funds collected remain in the county.

Charged with Seeking Million From Ebasco

Two Labor Leaders Accused of Using Threats of Violence

EAST ST. LOUIS (AP)—Two Southern Illinois AFL labor leaders were free on $105,000 bonds today after being indicted on charges they conspired to extort $1,048,000 from the firm originally hired to build an atomic installation at Joppla, Ill.

The indictment named Evan Dale, Carbondale, president of the Laborers Union District Council with jurisdiction over 32 locals in Southern Illinois and Kentucky, and his aide, James Bateman.

The indictment listed three counts of violating the federal anti-racketeering law in connection with alleged extortion of funds from Ebasco Services Inc.

Ebasco contracted to build the huge electric plant at Joppla which will supply the Paducah, Ky., atomic energy plant.

Charge Threats of Violence
The indictment charged Dale and Bateman attempted to extort $1,030,000 from Ebasco, a New York firm which lost the contract after 43 work stoppages and labor walkouts.

Bateman and Dale were accused of using "threats of force and violence" and making "unreasonable and unnecessary demands" in return for labor peace on the Joppla installation.

Dale was accused in three other indictments charging he extorted a total of $18,000 from a subcontractor on the atomic energy plant and two firms building highways in Southern Illinois.

He was indicted previously for income tax evasion and on another charge of racketeering in Missouri.

Dale surrendered here and was released on bonds totaling $80,000. Bateman was arraigned at Benton and released on $25,000 bond.

Illinois GOP, Democrats Hold Short Meetings

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Democratic and Republican parties today held perfunctory state conventions to comply with the law and then recessed to the actual convention dates in June.

State Republican Chairman Morton H. Hollingsworth and State Democratic Chairman James A. Ronan, each with a handful of party members present, gavelled thru resolutions stating the conventions had met.

By statute the conventions must be held by April 30. However, official vote canvasses of the primary election, on which the county allotments of delegates are based, have not been completed. This makes it necessary to hold a token meeting and then adjourn.

Ronan said he would like to hold the actual convention here on June 21 if the schedules of U. S. Sen. Paul H. Douglas and other party candidates will permit them to attend.

Young Demos to Elect Officers
Hollingsworth said the GOP convention will be held here June 12, unless objections are made to that date by Republican candidates or state officeholders. He said the State Armory has been reserved and Gov. William G. Stratton has approved the date.

Main business of the June conventions will be the nomination of three candidates by each party for University of Illinois trustees, and the drawing up of state platforms for the November election.

Illinois Young Democrats gathered here today for committee meetings preliminary to their state convention Saturday.

Douglas is scheduled to be the principal speaker Saturday night. New officers will be elected Saturday afternoon. Current president is State Rep. Alan J. Dixon, Belleville.

Out Our Way

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says:
French Bungling Gives Position
Of Paratrooping Planes
Over Dien Bien Phu; Cows
Will Get Back Milk They Once
Gave Benson; FDR's Doctor
Will Run For Congress.

WASHINGTON — French censorship has blacked out the truth, but Gen. Henri Navarre, the French commander, has literally been throwing away planes and paratroopers over Communist-ringed Dien Bien Phu.

Reports have filtered back to the Pentagon that airtight planes have announced their position to the Red anti-aircraft batteries below.

Some unaccountable reason, the pilots have been reporting their exact altitude and relaying flight instructions in plain French without bothering to use code.

In other words, as the planes drone over Dien Bien Phu, the air-control radio crackles with exact reports on their position and cargo. All the Red anti-aircraft gunners need is a radio to get a bearing on the planes. The result has been an appalling accurate anti-aircraft fire over Dien Bien Phu. Over one-third of the parachuting reinforcements have been lost before they got a chance to go into action.

U. S. military observers urged the French to withdraw from Dien Bien Phu in the first place because it was too exposed. They also report that General Navarre failed to pour in enough supplies and medicine to sustain the besieged jungle fortress. Finally they suggested sending a relief column overland to rescue the embattled defenders, but Navarre dispatched such a small force that it was ambushed and had to retreat.

Irony is that Dien Bien Phu was erected as a trap to bait the Reds. It was built in the deep jungles on the same theory that the natives tether a goat or lamb in the jungle to bait a tiger. Then they lay in wait and shoot the tiger.

The French figured that by enticing the Reds to attack the impregnable fortress of Dien Bien Phu they could en trap and massacre a large segment of the Viet-minh army. This was the sole purpose of the fort. Strategically, it isn't important. However, the tragic battle to defend it is influencing the peace of the world.

MILK GOES BACK TO COWS
Secretary of Agriculture Benson is working on a new program whereby America's dairy cows may soon be eating the same milk they gave.

In an effort to unload some of the 589,000,000 pounds of dried milk now stored in government warehouses, Secretary Benson has decided to sell a portion of it to processors of animal and poultry feed.

The price set by the Agriculture Department is a mere 3 1/2 to 4 cents a pound—only a fraction of what the milk cost the taxpayers. However, this cut-rate sale of dried milk should act as a stimulant to the feed industry and will probably lower the farmers' feed bills a bit.

Actually the dried milk unloading scheme is another way to "solve" the agricultural surplus problem without resorting to the Brannan plan. Under ex-Agriculture Secretary Brannan's plan, the taxpayers would get the benefit of lower milk prices resulting from the surplus. But under this latest maneuver it's the cows, poultry, pigs and cattle, not human beings, that will consume the dried milk.

Agricultural economists also expect the new program to be a financial boost for the nation's feed manufacturers. They will be able to add cheap milk to their feed in place of other, more expensive proteins.

Note — The two men who operate the nation's price-support program have been very close to the feed business. Top man is James A. McConnell, administrator of the Commodity Stabilization Service, former executive vice-president of the Grange-League Federation Exchange of Ithaca, N. Y., one of the world's largest mixers and distributors of livestock feed. McConnell's deputy is Walter C. Berger, who was president of the American Feed Manufacturers Association.

ADMIRAL FOR CONGRESS
Adm. Ross McIntire, the White House doctor who watched so carefully over FDR's health, is now

Republican from Maryland.

American diplomats at Geneva have secretly sounded out the Chinese Communists about settling the Indo-China war and stopping all aid to the Vietminh guerrillas. In return for peace, U. S. diplomats propose giving Red China warm-water port at Haiphong on the Tonkin gulf. This would give Red China a vital trade outlet and would mean the partition of Indo-China. However, the Red guerrilla leader, Ho Chi Minh, is said to be dead set against compromise, wants to capture Hanoi where his rebellion began in 1946.

President Eisenhower's harassed economic advisers are trying to figure out a way to unspool the public's pocketbook. Statistics show that personal income, after taxes, has gone up, yet retail sales are continuing to drop. In other words, the public has gone on a nationwide waiting for prices to come down. Economists believe they could solve the recession overnight if they could somehow persuade the public to start buying again.

Paradoxically, the Treasury Department simultaneously is fighting against increasing the public's buying power by means of consumer concessions in the tax bill.

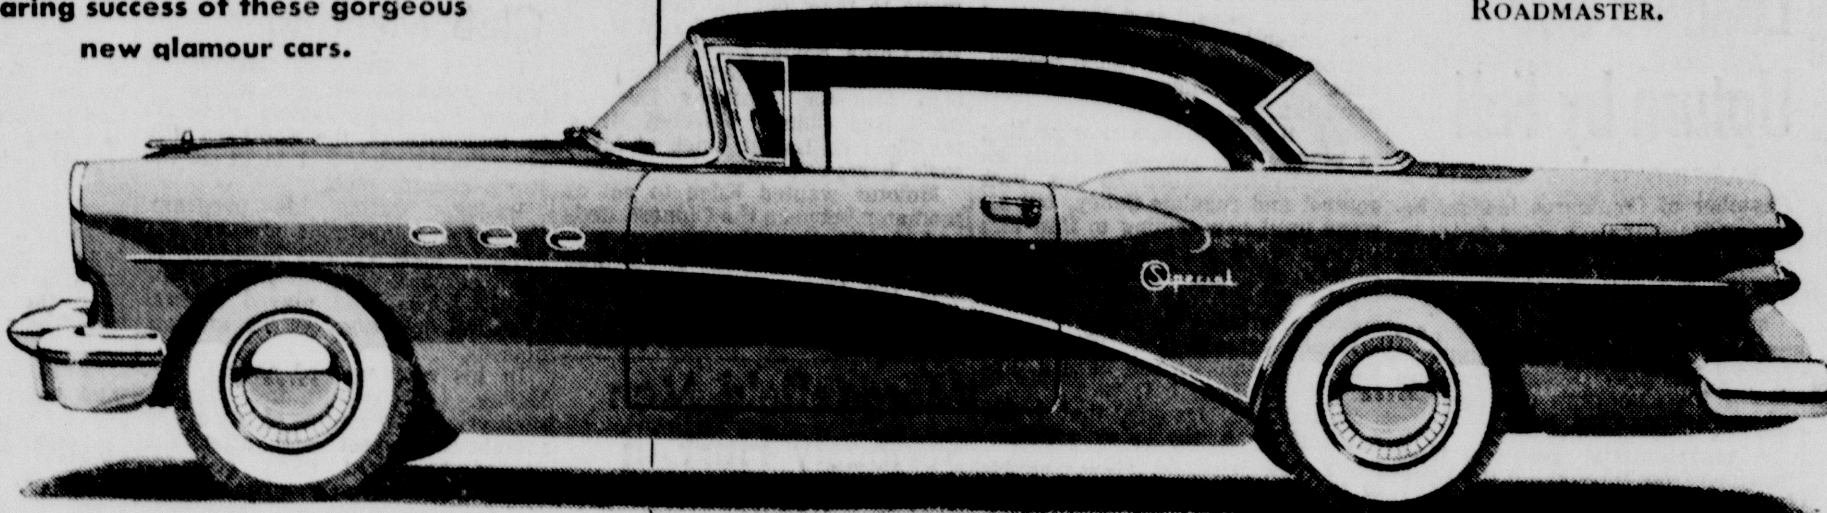

More than 4,000,000,000 one-lb. loaves of bread can be made from 2,000,000 tons, about 75,000,000 bushels, of wheat.

Amino acids are vital to building proteins in humans.

Plan to Liberalize Home Loan Program Meets Opposition

WASHINGTON (UP) — Chairman Homer E. Capehart of the Senate Banking Committee said today he is opposed to an administration proposal to liberalize the scandal-ridden government home loan insurance program.

The Indiana Republican spoke against the proposal as his committee turned from its "preliminary" inquiry of the multi-million dollar housing scandals to the drafting of the administration's housing bill.

Capehart's announcement pointed up indications that President Eisenhower's housing program may be sharply curtailed as a result of the alleged irregularities in the Federal Housing Administration.

Two key features of the program — broadening of home improvement loans and housing for low income groups — seemed certain to be modified, if not eliminated, by the committee.

Involved in Scandals

Capehart said he would oppose the administration's recommendation that the limit on government insured home improvement loans be hiked from $2,500 to $3,000 and the repayment time stretched from 36 to 40 months.

Government insured loans for home improvements and large-scale apartment projects are the two programs involved in the scandals. Many home owners are alleged to have been victimized by disreputable building salesmen who pressured them into taking out loans for costly improvements and repairs.

Apartment builders are accused of pocketing up to a half-billion dollars in quick "windfall" profits by getting FHA insured loans amounting to more than the cost of their projects. This program expired in 1950.

Burn Gambling Equipment Seized In Alexander County

CAIRO, Ill. (UP) — Sheriff's officers today broke up and burned gambling equipment seized by state police in raids on 16 Alexander County taverns last Halloween.

Sheriff L. M. Hartline carried out orders by Circuit Judge Clarence E. Wright to destroy the dice and card tables, roulette wheels, slot machines, punchboards, bingo equipment and other gambling devices taken in the raids.

Wright also ordered Thursday that money confiscated in the raids and found to be part of the gambling operations be turned over to the county treasurer. Other money and property seized in the raids were returned to operators of the clubs.

Fifteen of the 16 tavern operators have been fined $100 and costs each and one is awaiting trial May 4.

Held for State Prison Authorities

Eugene Sweeney, arrested by county authorities for writing bad checks, is being held for state prison authorities. Sheriff Paul Sangler has received word that he has violated his parole from Joliet penitentiary, where he was an inmate.

Cole Urges Joint U. S.-Canadian Air Defense

NEW YORK (UP) — Rep. W. Sterling Cole has called for a joint U. S.-Canadian air defense to build an atomic wall against hydrogen attacks on North American cities.

Cole, chairman of the Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee, said discoveries since 1950 make it practical to manufacture "small scale" atomic weapons designed to intercept enemy planes while they are still far out to sea.

The New York Republican said there is need for a defense in depth if the United States is to take advantage of the new atomic interceptors. He said the weapons would have to be used far from population centers because of the danger involved.

Addressing a Colgate University anniversary banquet in New York Thursday night, Cole said a combined U. S.-Canadian air defense command is needed to guard against the "unprecedented" threat of Russian atomic attack.

Need Early Warning Line

High military sources said such a command has been under consideration but is not deemed necessary at this time.

Cole charged that creation of an effective U. S.-Canadian air defense is bogged down in a "bureaucratic maze" despite four years of joint consultations. He said he will try to remedy the situation by introducing a bill to provide for a new assistant defense secretary for continental defense.

Cole said an effective air defense requires an "early warning line" across northern Canada, and extending far out into the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

He said such a line still does not exist although scientists pointed out the need for it four years ago and developed equipment to make it possible two years ago.

Pinkneyville Man Named Receiver For Bankrupt Mine

EAST ST. LOUIS (UP) — Lloyd Middleton, of Pinkneyville, has been appointed receiver for the bankrupt Juliana Coal Mine Co. of Elkville.

The company filed for voluntary bankruptcy here April 27 stating that the firm was unable to meet its employees' payroll and that continuance of business was impossible.

The company listed liabilities of $352,212 and said all property would be surrendered for creditors.

The referee in the case was Clyde Meachum.

"Great-souled" is the literal translation of Mahatma.

Britain to Lift Ban on Export of Rubber to Red Bloc

LONDON (UP) — Britain announced today it will lift all controls on the export of rubber to Russia and Eastern Europe on Monday.

"There is increasing evidence that the Soviet bloc is getting all the rubber it wants elsewhere anyway," a British board of trade spokesman said. "They haven't been taking up the quotas of what they could have had here recently."

The ban remains on rubber shipments to Red China.

Administration Seeking Quick End to Hearings

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Eisenhower administration, concerned about harmful effects of the Army-McCarthy row on GOP unity, is making strong backstage efforts to speed up the hearings and end the controversy as soon as possible, it was learned today.

However, the efforts so far have been blocked by the rules imposed on itself by the Senate investigating subcommittee. They permit almost unlimited cross-examination which could drag out the televised proceedings for weeks.

President Eisenhower tipped off White House concern over the hearings at his news conference Thursday when he said he hoped they will be concluded quickly. He also said he considered the subject a matter about which he did not want to talk.

It was learned from highly placed GOP sources, however, that the President and his advisers have shown deep concern over the widely publicized intra-party wrangle and have started efforts to see what can be done to speed an end to the spectacle.

Two of the key figures in the backstage negotiations, it was reliably reported, are Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Maj. Gen. Wilton B. (Slick) Persons, administrative aide to the President and his chief liaison man with Congress.

Strikes Hit Postwar Low
WASHINGTON — Strikes during the first quarter of 1954 hit a postwar low for the period, the Labor Department reported today.

Government labor relations experts have predicted a relatively low level of strike activity this year because of job fears aroused by rising unemployment.

There were 800 strikes in the first three months of 1953 involving 550,000 workers and 3,720,000 idle man-days.

This compared to 1,276 strikes in the first three months of 1953 involving 550,000 workers and 3,720,000 idle man-days.

Convince Russia We Want Peace, Churchill Urges
LONDON (UP) — Prime Minister Winston Churchill urged today that relations be established with Russia that will convince the Soviets "we wish them peace."

Speaking to an audience of Conservative Party members, Churchill said he favored a policy which "in spite of all its distractions and perils and contradictions, would convince the Russian people and the Soviet government that we wish them peace, happiness and ever-expanding prosperity."

He said he also hoped to convince France that Germany must be accepted back into the "family of Europe."

"Our policy today is to preserve our friendship with France and to convince the French people that their own safety, as well as the freedom of Europe, will not be achieved without bringing Germany back into the family of Europe and enabling her to play the worthy part she has accepted in the defense of Western Europe," Churchill said.

SQUEAKS' SPIRIT SUBS FOR PAWS—This is a success story of Squeaks, a two-legged dog belonging to Mrs. Dominic Guerra, of Cleveland, Ohio. Squeaks, now five months old, was born with shoulder blades, but no front legs. On the advice of a city dog warden, Mrs. Guerra let the mongrel puppy live, and she's tickled pink. Squeaks has developed personality, as well as agility and has become the pet and marvel of the entire neighborhood. Here's how he gets around.

If he's in a hurry, he rests his chin on the floor and drives his hind legs like pistons. Or he hops like a kangaroo, bending far forward, bouncing his chin on the carpet for balance.

He puts his chin on the third step, then jumps up one step at a time. At first this was hard and he needed help, but as he grows in size and agility it's getting easier.

Eating is no problem. Squeaks bends forward, balancing on his hind legs and gulps his food as any normal dog would. One would think his front legs were merely invisible.

Dulles is said to be keenly disappointed by what he regards as Anglo-French foot-dragging on Korea.

The American sources said the British and French apparently still feel that to get "too tough" at this stage might upset public opinion with the fear that chances of a Far East settlement are being frittered away.

'Go Home, Young Man,' Says Editor H. Clay Tate; You'll Do as Well as in Big City

By JAMES FLOWERS
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK—(NEA)—If you're thinking about leaving the old home town for a fling at fame and fortune in the big city, stop, look and listen before you pull those stakes. For chances are that opportunity and the good life are all around you.

In fact, if you'll listen to the advice of a mid-western newspaper editor named H. Clay Tate, you may see your small town environment in an entirely different light. In a new book, "Building A Better Home Town," he presents a convincing argument that the pot-of-gold you're seeking may be right in your own backyard.

The theme of Tate's book puts reverse English on the advice of another newspaper editor of another era, Horace Greely, and declares: "Go home, young man, and build a better community."

Tate says the best brains and energy available are needed today to help build a balanced economy in the rural areas and the small communities of the nation.

Since the war, industry has been expanding slowly but surely toward the rural areas. But these companies aren't moving "just to get out in the open." Many firms demand sound reasons from a community before they choose a location.

As the president of one large company put it: "We want a local government that is alert, progressive, understanding, clean and businesslike. Also, the town must be a good place to bring up a family."

How can a small community attract such worthwhile industry? Tate says every community needs a major civic group with a common purpose which includes members of both sexes from all walks of life and representing all points of view.

Usually, the small town newspaper can do more than any other agency to weld the people into a working team to make their community more attractive physically and from an economic standpoint.

Tate and his newspaper helped organize the "Central Illinois Community Betterment Program." This organization strengthened not one but many small communities located around a large urban area.

According to Tate, every community through self-analysis of needs and potentialities, and then "doing something" about them, can head off what he calls the "human erosion of young people from the farms and small towns into the metropolitan areas."

"We have a system of agriculture which assumes that at least 50 per cent of the farm youngsters must go away from the farm to find a livelihood," he says. "This is true because we have applied new machinery to old methods in the farm belt. Instead of putting machinery to work to process the crops of the land at the source, we have used it to replace man labor."

Tate also blames our Horatio Alger philosophy for sending rural youngsters swarming into the big cities in search of money, prestige and a glamorous career.

Actually, it's rare when local-boy makes good dreams come true. Instead, he finds untold congestion, crime, slums and agencies and organizations over which he can exercise little if any control. In short, he loses his individuality, Tate adds.

"Most of the young people who go off to the big cities don't make good," says Tate. "Most of them fare no better than—if, indeed as well as—their fellows who stay at home."

But a small community has to have more than industry and jobs to keep the young people at home. It can only survive if it offers the citizens what they want. The small town must have leaders and civic organizations with imagination and a get-up-and-go attitude.

If the town needs a doctor, or a new hospital, or more streets paved, or an athletic field, or a new theater, then town officials and civic leaders should make every effort to get them. It's fun working together for such things, says Tate.

The old cry of "there's really nothing to do in a small town" just isn't true any more if a community is on the ball. Bands, athletic programs, musical concerts, festivals, local plays, stunt nights and street dances are only a few things that can make small town living interesting.

For instance, a large power company down South conducts a state-wide contest each year to decide the champion small town of the state. The competition is keen, and everybody in the little towns and villages really pitches in to make their community a blue ribbon environment.

Mountain Township Financial Report for Year Ending March 30

GWIN DAVIS REPORT MADE BEFORE DEATH

Although this report of Gwin Davis, late supervisor from Mountain township, is strictly a legal report, the Register feels it is fitting to make mention that it was prepared just a few weeks before his death last week.

When Mr. Davis brought the report to the Register office, he was complimented on the fact that it was neat and in proper order. Those who knew of Mr. Davis' personal problems during the past few years, including the death of Mrs. Davis and his own poor health, realize the burden he was carrying, but he continued to handle the duties of his office in a proper manner.

CAVE-IN-ROCK CAVE which provided excellent shelter and protection was a popular stopping place for travelers and traders during early days. Today vicinity is visited by many people attracted to the state park and picnic facilities

Cave-in-Rock on Ohio River Famous As Landmark for Earliest Travelers

By JOHN W. ALLEN

Southern Illinois University

The town of Cave-in-Rock on the Ohio river was named for the cave in the bluffs that border the river just above the village.

The cave, famous as a landmark and as the lair of early-day river pirates and outlaws, was described by the earliest travelers along the stream. A French explorer indicated it on a map as early as 1729 and labeled it "Caverne dans le Roc." Another explorer, the Frenchman Charlevoix, wrote of it in 1744. After that it received frequent mention. Travelers along the Ohio could hardly fail to note such a conspicuous landmark, perhaps as widely known as any one along the entire length of the river.

The opening of the cave is about 50 feet wide and some 30 feet high. It extends backward into the bluff nearly 200 feet. At the back or north end the roof has broken through and a hole leads upward to the surface. A narrow pathway with rocky ledges on either side extends from the cave opening on the river bank to a large room at the back of the cave.

Became Popular for Travelers

When the river at normal stage, the cave is well above the water level. Only during unusually high stages does the river enter the cave. Since it provided excellent shelter and was protected by the bluffs along the north bank of the river, the cave became a popular stopping place for travelers, and traders using the river during early days.

The names of many of those who stopped there are carved on the rocks in and about the mouth of the cave. A writer visiting it in 1797 states that even then many names and dates had already been carved. A recent inspection fails to reveal any as early as 1797. The earliest name found with a legible date was that of L. Stansbury in 1804, followed by E. R. Felix in 1809, then came Isaac Coles in 1818, and E. C. Hunter and D. Brooks in 1821. There are countless others from that time until the present. Many older carvings are overgrown with moss and lichen, smeared with gobs of paint, or have been so far weathered by exposure that they cannot be read with assurance.

First Post Office in 1830

The village that grew up near the cave marks the location of one of the early ferries across the Ohio into Illinois. It has borne various names, as has the township lying about it. This township, in addition to being called Rock-and-Cave, Rock-in-Cave, Cave-in-Rock and Rock-Have, was also referred to in early Randolph county records as Rocking Cave and Cavey Rock.

The first post office at Cave-in-Rock, then called Rock-and-Cave, was established on May 27, 1830, with John W. Herod as postmaster. It was located at that time, perhaps not far from the cave. It is doubtful if there was much of a village at that time. The name of the post office was changed to Rock-in-Cave on March 12, 1832, and this name was retained until October 24, 1849, when the present name of Cave-in-Rock was adopted.

The date of the first settlement there does not seem to be definitely established. There is a tradition that it was settled by Louis Barker in 1816. This date is questionable since it is definitely known that Barker operated a ferry there at an earlier date.

The first ferry at this point was established by a group of immigrants consisting of about 30 families that arrived at that point in 1807. Not finding any means of crossing the river, they built their own ferry boat. The construction of this boat was supervised by Louis Barker, one of the group. Presumably Barker continued to operate a ferry at this place, for we find the county court of Randolph County licensed him to do so in the years 1811, 1812, 1813 and 1814, charging five dollars license fee each year. The village of Cave-in-Rock was incorporated January 2, 1901.

Vicinity Rich in Legends

The cave at Cave-in-Rock and the village have been the scene of several stories of interest. A very early one was first published under the title "Virginia Rose" and was later republished as "Brought to Bay." A part of this story is laid at the cave. A later one was Alice Hegan Rice's book concerning Mr. Opp, the scene of which is laid in the village of Cave-in-Rock. The principal character, Mr. Opp, was drawn from a printer living in the town at that time and known as Shadrach or "Shady" Jackson. With the names of Mason, Wilson, Big Harpe, Little Harpe, Alston, Duff, Sturdevant, Belt, Oldham, Potts and numerous others, the vicinity is one rich in legends.

Today the Cave-in-Rock vicinity is visited by many people. A state park, equipped with picnic facilities, is located on the bluff above the cave and overlooking the river. On holidays and summer afternoons hundreds of people come to visit the cave and tramp about the storied grounds along the bluff. Even without the romantic appeal, the scenery would attract many visitors.

Dunn apologized. "Maybe we have the current turned up a little too high. But you missed, Mark. You didn't hit the heart. Your stab wouldn't have been fatal. You missed, and that's what happens to you."

Mark Richards shook his head. "It only took me three times to learn exactly where to strike," Jim said. "When you stab the 'heart' there is no electric shock. How many shocks do you think Eddie had before he was perfect. Mark? Look at the threadbare place in the back of that coat. Between the shoulders, where a coat ordinarily wouldn't show great wear."

Mark shook his head slowly, as if to keep away the thought picture of Eddie Stone stabbing and stabbing again and again. Days of practice? Months? How much time had been spent in that cruel training? And for what promised reward? For a promise he would be like other people? Richards remembered the cyanide-filled soda pop and shivered.

He said, "Who, Jim?" "Mansfield, of course. Anyone who would want to try an experiment on a cat wouldn't mind trying one on a human being."

"But why?" "I think you'll find the answer to that in Mansfield's safe-deposit boxes," Jim said. "At one time he had a very large fortune. Yet we know he has made nothing from his writing. And he has denied himself nothing when it comes to his hobbies. That, beside his playing the stock market. You'll have to check with his brokers too, Mark. Remember, it was only a few months ago he had that expensive job of soundproofing done. I think you'll find his finances have taken a turn for the worse since then."

"What a way to get money," Mark said. "The method didn't enter into it with Mansfield," Jim said. "Read some of his literary efforts written during these last 20 years."

He was completely wrapped up in himself and the 'injustices' done him. With a man like that, say he lost on the market, do you think he would quibble a moment about how he regained his money? Oh, he was quite willing to gamble. Either on the market, or in staking the few years left of his life on this murder-extortion scheme. But he never dreamed he would be suspected, let alone found out.

"Is that why he did not dispose of this dummy?" "There," Jim said, "I believe it was more a matter of time. With police in and out of the house, he could not do anything suspicious. In fact it was not until the early hours of morning, almost daylight, that he considered it safe enough to hide the extortion money."

"The money!" Mark snapped his fingers. "I'll have the whole force in here, and we'll take this place apart board by board. Unless you've figured out where the money is too?"

"Approximately," Jim said. "Remember, Mansfield had two pipe wrenches with him when he was shot," Jim tried not to hesitate over the statement. "So we'll get us a couple of pipe wrenches. Then we'll go over all the pipes and plumbing, hunting for fresh scratches. One thing about pipe wrenches, they do leave marks."

Richards was staring now at his friend. "Jim, who shot him? He didn't shoot himself, did he?" Jim Dunn thought ruefully of the hours he had spent going through reams of handwritten manuscript, searching for some page which he might use for an admission.

But in Mansfield's writings there had been no thought, no small consideration of the fact that the man—or Mansfield—might have been guilty. Certainly Jim had found nothing that could be construed as a confession, even by separating a few sentences from the context.

"No," he said slowly. "Mansfield didn't shoot himself. But he's still alive. You can always ask him, Mark."

"You think he'll talk?" "No," Jim said. "I don't think he will. And we may find he was shot while making an attempt to destroy evidence of his guilt."

"So," Richards said slowly. "That's the way it is. We might get by with it, if Mansfield lives."

"He's got to live," Jim said. "And that's the reason you're not going to disturb him in any way until he is out of danger."

"I guess we can make a strong enough case against him without his saying anything—for now," Richards admitted. "Especially if we find the money. Of course, Mansfield can always say it was his own cash he had hidden."

"Don't forget our friend Mr. Jones. The one who had put little marks on his money, so he'd be able to recognize it. And, for that matter, I'd be very much surprised if Peter Atwood or some of the others hadn't done the same."

"All right, Jim," Richards said. "I'll play along with you—provided we find the money."

"Agreed. And Mark, before we leave this shop I should explain one reason why Eddie's radio was on—left running. The switching on of the lathe produced interference, made the radio around here howl. Eddie was listening for a signal too. He hurried down to join Mansfield when he heard. He—he was anxious to complete his number of tasks so he could be changed into his real form."

"Tasks?" Richards said. "Where did you get that?"

"From a high school play," Jim said. "A great favorite of Eddie Stone's. Through repetition it had come to be far more real than the actual world to him."

First Baptist Church Members Honor Choir Director

A get-together and appreciation meeting was held Tuesday evening at the First Baptist church in honor of the choir leader, Raymond Allen. He has served long and faithfully as choir leader and the choir and church in general presented him a wrist watch and an offering of money for Mrs. Allen, for her faithfulness during the eight years in assisting her husband.

Sandwiches, pie, coffee or tea were served to approximately 40 members present, after a year of praise and thanks was offered by Rev. Peppersack.

A social hour followed and a Bible quiz in rhyme. Singing by both quartet and the full group was also enjoyed.

U. S. Marine Corps recruiter, S-Sgt. Philip Hobbs, announces today a platoon of men from southern Illinois is being organized at present and will leave St. Louis around the middle of June for training in the Marine Corps.

The platoon will be made up entirely of men from southern Illinois and will be known as the "Pyramid" platoon, he said. It will number 72 men who will leave as a unit, train as a unit and return on furloughs as a unit. Ages for enlistment are from 17 to 28.

The platoon is filling up fast he said, and urges all interested to contact him at the post office in Carbondale or at the Unemployment Office here on Thursdays.

Illinois PTA Supports Reapportionment, Opposes UMT, Teacher Loyalty Oaths

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—The Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers today adopted a 1954-55 program supporting 11 state legislative proposals.

Most controversial items adopted were support of legislative reapportionment and opposition to universal military training and certain teacher loyalty oaths.

Delegates to the annual convention, attended by more than 3,000 persons, split between those favoring no loyalty oath at all and those seeking stricter loyalty oaths.

The adopted item calls for opposition to any loyalty oath for teachers different from those taken by public officials.

A lengthy floor fight followed a motion for a "gag rule" to limit debate on the platform, which determines what issues the PTA will support or fight in the next session of the General Assembly. The motion was finally beaten.

Delegates will vote at later sessions on proposed federal legislation support and on a dozen resolutions presented by local units.

Other proposals call for increased state grants and equalization funds, adequate funds for operating tax-supported schools only, and state support for public school building construction.

A separate resolution urges that Gov. William G. Stratton and the Legislature take emergency action to help school construction.

The program sought support of the United Nations, and federal aid to school construction and tax-supported public schools. It also asked prohibition of interstate shipment of fireworks.

Delegates elect new officers today. Nominated were Mrs. Melvin C. Lockard, Cobden, for president to succeed Mrs. Thomas Ludlow, Riverside; and Mrs. Milton L. Wiener, Chicago and Mrs. Looze for first and second vice presidents.

30 Servicemen Examined for H-Bomb Radiation

HONOLULU, T. H. (AP)—Thirty American servicemen received physical examinations to Tripler Army Hospital today after being exposed to "moderate amounts of radiation" during the recent hydrogen bomb tests at Eniwetok.

The men, including Army, Navy and Air Force personnel, arrived here Thursday aboard an air evacuation flight from Kwajalein.

An Army statement said: "Despite the fact that there is nothing apparently wrong with the men, they are going to be given complete medical examinations prior to their return to full duty."

"Although none of the group experienced any symptoms of radiation illness, they have been under close observation ever since their exposure at Eniwetok last month."

Smith to Head U. S. Delegation with Dulles to Return Home

WASHINGTON (AP)—Undersecretary of State Walter Bedell Smith will leave for Geneva today to replace Secretary of State John Foster Dulles as head of the U. S. delegation at the East-West conference, the State Department announced.

When Dulles went to Europe more than a week ago, he planned to stay only a few days at Geneva. Reports from the conference site said Dulles plans to leave there Monday.
